There will be a beginning organic gardening workshop at the Cultivating an Organic Connecticut conference that CT NOFA is sponsoring at Windsor High School on February 21. Also offered are a wide variety of other workshops for gardeners, farmers, land care professionals and consumers. The keynote program will focus on Urban Agriculture with speakers from Holyoke, MA and Brooklyn, NY. There is information on the web site, www.ctnofa.org.

In addition our CT NOFA e-news which comes out around the first of each month will have more information on the conference and notice of other classes we know about. Sign up for the e-news on our web site or email deb@ctnofa.org

Bill Duesing is teaching a beginning organic gardening workshop in Oxford on March 25 that is open to the public (free to CCGA members with pre-registration) sponsored by the Oxford Horse and Livestock Association.

There are a variety of classes offered by Natureworks in North Branford. <http://www.naturework.com/> Many of them would give the beginning gardener a good head start.

Dawn Pettinelli dawn.pettinelli@uconn.edu is planning on teaching organic gardening in the Hartford area this winter or spring.

CT NOFA is planning to publicize the organic gardening workshops we know of and put together a series with CT NOFA members speaking in a number of other venues in Connecticut. Contact: Bill Duesing, Executive Director, CT NOFA, bduesing@mac.com (203) 888-5146.
